Special Message -- What is Happening? It's all Happening!

By Jenniffer Hoffman – Uriel Heals

Hi everyone,

I rarely send mid-week updates but this is such an important week and we are in such transformative times that I wanted to reach out to you and let you know what is happening this week and why you may be feeling unfocused and ungrounded, a little confused and even stuck as not much is moving right now. I would have written this earlier in the week but I was too tired!!

Did you feel ungrounded, tired and unsettled on August 3? Or were you energized, focused and ready for anything? Chances are you felt the former and that is because on that date the earth was bombarded with solar radiation from a C3 class solar flare. While not powerful enough to block communications, it bombarded the earth with magnetic waves that were powerful enough to affect us physically, even going to far as to alter our chemical makeup.

This solar flare opens us up to another important event, the Grand Cardinal Cross that is exact on Friday, August 6, when the moon moves into Cancer. This is such an important event that astrologers have been talking about it for more than two years. It represents an opportunity to right-size the world, to alter the status quo, create closure and anchor in new paradigms. And on August 9 we have a New Moon!

If you have been putting off your transformation, now is the time. It will come rushing to meet you with open arms. Are you ready? (if not, it is here anyway)

Transformation occurs as our soul reminds us of our purpose and mission, when it knows that despite all of our preparation, taking the next step is the hardest part. Where do we go and what do we do? What do we take with us and what stays behind? What do we dare allow ourselves with the fear that it will not happen?

Are we ready to step into our greatness? The question is not 'are we really great?', but can we allow ourselves to think and believe it long enough to allow it to happen?

What is being brought to your awareness for consideration? Are you ready to release? Do you know what you want next? Here's what someone wrote to me today:

"My dreams are so vivid this week, let alone deep emotional baggage coming up. I feel burned out by my experience. We must be releasing a major amount of past issues, surrender is the key word for me."

And the participants in the Miracle Coaching program are watching their mindset shift, they are suddenly getting clear on life issues they have struggled with for years and are manifesting with the slightest thoughts.

Remember that surrender does not mean we give up-it simply means that we stop fighting. Where can you surrender and in doing this, be open to miracles you would never have considered possible? Where and what are you resisting? This is where your fears and doubts lie.

These are questions for you to ponder for the next few days as we, the family of humanity, are bombarded with the waves of change. We are ready, this is our destiny and we are in this together. So no matter where you are in your evolution, it is a path of unfolding learning and choice for you. When everything is up in the air, as it is now, our thoughts become so important.

Be sure your thoughts are always focused on what you want to create because it will be created. This energetic bombardment amplifies our manifesting abilities and creation occurs without judgment. If you do not want an elephant in your living room, don't ask for one. Imagine that the Universe has just handed you the magical lamp and all you have to do is speak your heart-felt requests to manifest what you want.

What do you want your life to look like today and from this point forward? Be bold, brave, daring and outrageous. These are the energies we are working with this week, so take advantage of them. Pay attention to the signs you receive as everything is significant.

Many blessings in these miraculous and amazing times,

Jennifer Hoffman
